The work upon the suit, it is calculated, will cost $500. The pages' costumes cost $3 a piece, or $150.

Captain Robert Newtori has just turned twenty-one years, but for several years he has been possessed of the determination to win first place among the captains of fancy clubs. His residence is at $55 Leithgow street, a narrow thoroughfare above Fourth street, in a little but neat two-story frame house. He is employed in a moroccommanufactory in the neighborhood and is an industrious workman. He declares that he has sayed up himself every cent of the $1,800, which, he says, he spent for the material of his suit.

The stock market displayed a sagging tendency in prices during the greater part of to-day, and the speculative movement was sluggish. Suspense is growing acute in financial circles regarding the proposed bond issue, as the matter had been generally expected to be closed by this time. The same condition applies to almost all other branches of Wall street businers, which are rendered unsettlied by the regardency delay on a nuestiled by the other branches of Wall street businers, which are rendered unsettled by the protracted delay on a question of such decided interest. New Year's Day in a marvelous costume of silk, satin, velvet, plush and embrotdery, that he says cost $1,800, nil paid out of his own savings of years. He was the most splendid New Year's 'Shooter' of his generation, and though he was almost prostrated with the labor of bearing the astounding creation, even though fifty satin-clothed "pages" helped him, he was resting screnely last evening, conscious of the fact that the ambition of a lifetime had been realised, for to be the champion of all the shooters has been his dream of years. He will rest on his laurels, for he said at his modest little home, at 955 Lethgow street, last night, that having distanced all competitors, he will not be a New Year's shooter again. "I have set the pace," he exclaimed, proudly. "Now let others follow me if they can. and there was ermined princes, and jewel-bedecked kings, galore, and courtiers in silk and costly lace, galore, but the constellation about which all revolved was the $1,800 costumed captain of the Newton Club.

He was a constellation, literally and aguratively, for the silk and plush wonder was in the design of a creecent, and star, and the rim of the crescent, and the points of the star, were supported by Lords Fauntieroy, some of whom chewed tobacco, and others of whom smoked cigarettes. Still, the effect was one that seemed to impress the crowds who througed about favorably, and wherever the captain and his satellites moved, they were surrounded by wondering and admiring thousands.

This wonder of the day was brought out into the light of day from the little frame building on Cadwallader street, above Girard avenue where it was made about 9 o'clock yesterday morning. The work on it was done in the greatest secrecy. For three months a quartette of embroiderers his been plying the needle incessantly and in the last three weeks the work has been kept up day and night. Even the workwomen, the captain says, were kept in ignorance of the exact design of the suit until it was carried out into the street yesterday morning. For an hour previous to the event the neighborhood was in a flurry of excitement. Haif a hundred little boys and a few overgrown ones, whose upper lips were the abiding places of certain bunches of bristly hair, had disappeared into the house where the suit was made, and had reappeared in a few moments completely transformed. Torn stockings had been hidden from view beneath other stockings of stunning pink. Where before had been bottomless coats were now plnk silk Lord Fauntiersy coats and white blouses. Brimless hats gave way to caps of spotless white, and unkempt hair, to curry, glossy wiss. Then all the little Fauntieroys, while the captain was getting ready, hied themselves to a neighboring store, pad defended themselves to a neighboring store, pad defended themselves to a neighboring store,

Four men emerged from the doorway carrying, with atraining backs, a great load of flufty slik andiewansdown. Then the lords danced into the middle of the street, and selzed the edges at designated places. And while the populace stood wondering the bundle was unfolded, and there was evolved a monster creacent, forty-seven feet wide and embroidered with countiess roses. Again the men disappeared into the house, and this time they brought out two side capes, equally as wide as the creacent, and similarly decorated.

Then came a thirty-six-pointed star, whose branches were united with bands of pink ribbon. Lastly came a four-pointed star, and then the captain. He took up a position behind the smaller star, the crescent and the larger star were tied to him with ribbof, the populace shouted and the captain, almost weekled to the weight with the load. a smile of satisfaction on his lips, and the eyes of everybody, especially the prefty girls, on his costume.

At Fourth street the remainder of the Newton Club fell in line, and the line of march was taken down Fourth street.
